

CALLING ALL AAE MEMBERS!

What do you want and expect from your membership of the AAE?

You are invited to attend a General Meeting of the AAE to be held in the Lecture Theatre of the Royal Astronomical Society
Burlington House, Piccadilly, London, W1J 0BQ on Saturday, 5th December. The meeting will start at 11.30 am.

The AAE was set up to promote:

- Public education in astronomy
- Its establishment throughout the National Schools Science Curriculum
- Support for teachers through the provision of resources and training

SUCCESS!

Now that astronomy appears to be a stable element of the curriculum, there is currently little to be done in that area. Resources are also widely available on the Internet, through numerous publications, as is outreach by the Research Councils.

THE FUTURE

With a new AAE Council in place, following our recent AGM, it is time to consider future directions the AAE might take to further our original mission.

It would be useful to know if you plan to attend this meeting. Please e-mail Teresa Grafton (AAE Secretary) at aae@erwwen.co.uk

NB! This is an opportunity for members to visit Burlington House – a magnificent building which shares a courtyard in Piccadilly with a number of other famous learned societies as well as the Royal Academy of Arts. On the day of the meeting, the RAS librarian, Peter Hingley, will offer AAE members a guided tour of the RAS library and display some of its rare and unique contents.

Go to website www.ras.org.uk for details and follow link to RAS Meetings to find a map.
